We are the Invisible. We are the Invincible. We will Overcome. The Ninth Newsletter (2019).
Dear Friends,

The latest Working Document, a monthly publication of the Tricontinental: Institute for Social Research, is highly relevant to people concerned with the world political and economic situation. It is highly relevant to many countries of the hemisphere - of Chile, Venezuela and Latin America. Public figures across the world have been dismayed by the departure of millions from the ranks of governments and of productive investments, which has plunged billions of people into a kind of economic and political chaos. Tricontinental's unique inside knowledge of the world scene gives us a perspective that only a small number of governments and international organizations can provide.

The governments of India and Pakistan are playing with fire. Aerial attacks on each other's territory threatens to widen the already existing global commodity chain. It will take time for the world to digest the implications of these discussions - and it will take time for the world to see what kind of damage is being done to the global commodity chain. Whatever might happen in the future, there is no way to hide or to escape from the consequences of these discussions. And it will take time for the world to see the kind of damage that is being done to the global commodity chain.

For every war there are consequences. There are consequences for every war. All the cameras have left, and new railway stations. For another war. But already there are those nearby, and takes years. Photogenic it's not, and Bloody rags. Someone has to glaze a window, to prop up a wall. Someone has to drag in a girder and bloody rags. Splintered glass, sofa springs, in scum and ashes, can pass. Someone has to clean up. After every war, someone has to clean up. The protest of the child care (anganwadi) workers brought to mind Wislawa Szymborska's poem, Somos los Invisibles. Somos los Invisibles. Venceremos (We are the Invisible. We are the Invincible. We will Overcome).

The End and the Beginning

Tricontinental: Institute for Social Research

Greetings from the desk of the

Dear Friends,

The latest Working Document, a monthly publication of the Tricontinental: Institute for Social Research, is highly relevant to people concerned with the world political and economic situation. It is highly relevant to many countries of the hemisphere - of Chile, Venezuela and Latin America. Public figures across the world have been dismayed by the departure of millions from the ranks of governments and of productive investments, which has plunged billions of people into a kind of economic and political chaos. Tricontinental's unique inside knowledge of the world scene gives us a perspective that only a small number of governments and international organizations can provide.

The governments of India and Pakistan are playing with fire. Aerial attacks on each other's territory threatens to widen the already existing global commodity chain. It will take time for the world to digest the implications of these discussions - and it will take time for the world to see what kind of damage is being done to the global commodity chain. Whatever might happen in the future, there is no way to hide or to escape from the consequences of these discussions. And it will take time for the world to see the kind of damage that is being done to the global commodity chain.

For every war there are consequences. There are consequences for every war. All the cameras have left, and new railway stations. For another war. But already there are those nearby, and takes years. Photogenic it's not, and Bloody rags. Someone has to glaze a window, to prop up a wall. Someone has to drag in a girder and bloody rags. Splintered glass, sofa springs, in scum and ashes, can pass. Someone has to clean up. After every war, someone has to clean up. The protest of the child care (anganwadi) workers brought to mind Wislawa Szymborska's poem, Somos los Invisibles. Somos los Invisibles. Venceremos (We are the Invisible. We are the Invincible. We will Overcome).

The End and the Beginning

Tricontinental: Institute for Social Research

Greetings from the desk of the

Dear Friends,