before the Anqing Uprising. 'Don’t tell me women are not the stuff of heroes’, she said.

Our image below is of Qiu Jin (1875-1907), a Chinese feminist, poet and revolutionary. After the founding of the feminist and nationalist journal Zhongguo nubao [Chinese Women’s News], Qiu Jin, along with her cousin Xu Xilin, trained revolutionaries along with her cousin Xu Xilin. They were both caught, tortured and executed for the plot to overthrow the Manchu dynasty.

Don’t tell me women are not the stuff of heroes.’ Qiu Jin trained revolutionaries and was herself one. She was a woman of action. Her legacy is one of courage, sacrifice and dedication to the cause of women’s rights and national independence.
